125 ▼ Love Mike, but I'm not going to D.C. to hear speeches. Whoever is creating line-ups of 'speakers', STOP!
D.C. needs to be ACTION! Nothing less than brute action is going to save our country.

63 ▼ With the huge crowd there have to be speakers to focus the energy. Not a crowd milling around.

14 It's not useless, showing our numbers will be a show of force that the country is behind our president. If you don't support the President why the fuck are you here... Be gone doomer!

15 ▼ Some rando on twitter said they're building a 1/4 mile perimeter of fencing around the capitol building tomorrow, plus closing down all the roads. I'll believe it when I see it but be prepared.

25 ▼ "The mayor of DC is closing down hotels and restaurants..." and now there's temporary fencing too? Guess it's time to stay home and watch Cuties on Netflix instead of hanging traitors.

What are we going to do with all this rope?

I agree with those who don't want to hear a speech. I honestly don't think I'm the right guy to do this, but maybe I'm the guy to give one of you the idea. Somebody get up on the stage and snatch the mic away and say that we aren't here to listen to speeches. Motivate the crowd to focus on what we're really there for. Somebody step up and lead and don't let these speakers drain our energy. Any of you think you're a good candidate for that job?

No time for hopium speeches. Speakers and listeners need to get out of the way. We know what's at stake. May as well throw in Herschel Walker and Mark Taylor while you're at it.

Guys, I don't get the downvotes. Just saying he looks like Mario if he stopped plumbing and went into the (highly lucrative) pillow making industry.

He probably is sponsoring something but the man is also hard core Trump loyalists. Mostly because like many, he believes Trump presidency is divine providence and is all in. I also believe the Lord will be spitting the Red Sea to deal with this corruption.
